

Your Source for Quality Machined Parts

Grandus specializes in precision machining parts from aluminum, steel, stainless, nylon, and plastics. We serve a wide variety of industries from prototype to production of short and long run parts.

At Grandus, we believe that consistency and thorough attention to detail is critical. We specialize in being able to do each job in-house to maintain a higher degree of quality and control over every aspect of the job – from beginning to end.

We work with our customers to make sure we meet their demands. Our design and manufacturing engineers use well-defined and documented drawings for getting the maximum benefit and uniformity out of our machining capabilities. We make sure parts are checked continuously to insure precision.

We offer the ability to prototype any part before it goes to manufacturing, as we have the capacity to run short or long runs and believe in making it right the first time.

Our experience, dedication, innovation, quality, and service can make all the difference. We will ensure that your Grandus experience is an excellent experience.
